Generali, European partnership with Discovery for the launch of the cutting-edge Vitality products

- Vitality is a unique behavioral-based shared value insurance model that encourages and rewards customers to improve health and well-being – creating powerful health and protection offerings

Trieste - Generali has entered into an European partnership – the first of its kind in Continental Europe – with the leading insurer Discovery to launch the innovative Health and Protection shared value insurance products “Vitality”.

Vitality is the flagship behavior-linked shared value insurance model designed by Discovery and focused on “making people healthier” through personalized and regular interaction with the customer to encourage and reward healthy behavior.

The Generali Group CEO, Mario Greco, said: “At the core of Generali’s vision is to actively protect and enhance people’s lives. This partnership provides an exciting opportunity for us to roll out across Europe a highly sophisticated proposition that gives unique insights and contact with customers, helping them along a journey for better health and well-being which is a benefit for them and society at large.”

The Vitality solution has been designed around three main principles:
- Rewarding healthy behavior with benefits and promotions provided by a broad network of partners that cover a complete range of lifestyle activities (e.g. nutrition, gyms, travel);
- Personalizing client relationship to motivate them towards activities that improve their lifestyle with frequent interaction and tailored programmes;
- Providing a new and ground-breaking bond between the insurer and the customer through an engaging shared value offering.

The Generali Vitality design phase has already commenced and the first customers are expected to be signed up exclusively in Germany, France and Austria.
